World's Finest Frontage For New Seaside Resort

CONCRETE SEAWALL AND SPACIOUS ESPLANADE AT MISSION BEACH

According to claims made by designers and evidenced in the high class of construction work, the Mission Beach ocean shore line along the entire frontage of the amusement center will present the finest appearance of any beach in the world through seawall and esplanade construction that is now being rushed to completion.

The reinforced concrete seawall and esplanade, beautifully as well as substantially designed, is calculated to enhance the imposing grandeur of the resort buildings erected by the Mission Beach company, and will at the same time lend stability and cleanliness to the beach besides adding to the convenience and comfort of patrons.

CLIFF WEBSTER

ORGANIZING DANCE ORCHESTRA FOR MISSION BEACH

Hrebert S. Burns, general manager of amusements and concessions for the Mission Beach Company, has announced the engagement of Cliff Webster as leader of the orchestra for the palatial new dance pavilion and cafe at Mission Beach.

Mr. Webster has tendered his resignation as conductor of the Pantheater orchestra and will become actively associated with the Mission Beach Company on April 27. The new orchestra planned for the Mission Beach Dance Pavilion will be the best that money can procure, and will be composed of fourteen musicians, each being an artist in his particular line.

APPLICATION MADE

FOR ORNAMENTAL LIGHTS AT MISSION BEACH

A special request by the Mission Beach chamber of commerce that an ornamental lighting district be created at that beach was referred by the council last Monday to the City Manager for a report.

The chamber desires to establish ornamental standards along Mission boulevard the entire length of the strand and along the ocean and bay fronts, with 400 candle-power lamps. The entire beach district except the amusement center, which will have its own illumination, will be assessed for the improvements.

BUILDING FINE HOUSES

The finishing touches are being given by Contractor Geo. Finley to the handsome new Burns residence, on Newport avenue. Builder Finley is also making excellent progress on the fine house for John Frey and the Stevenson cottages at Cable and Brighton avenue.

CLARA MILLER JAILED

ON FRAUD CHARGES

Justice Charles B. DeLong sentenced Clara Miller to jail for ten days at her hearing on charges of fraud last Wednesday, when she was also given a suspended sentence of thirty days more on condition that she leave the city upon being released from jail. Her record showed she had cut a wide swath of fraudulent depredations in the beach district.

HELD ON CHECK CHARGE

Fred Schofield, charged with passing a fictitious check on W. N. Owen, was held to answer to the superior court at his preliminary hearing before Justice DeLong last Tuesday. Bail was set at $2000. The date of trial has been set for next Monday in Part 3, Superior Court.

E. W. Haustein, frame cottage, 5030 Del Monte; $1100.

Guy Torricellas, stucco and garage, 4840-42 Niagara; $3500.

BOND ELECTION SUBJECT TO SPECIAL CALL BY CITY COUNCIL

The city council last Monday instructed City Attorney Higgins to draw up the proceedings necessary for calling a district election in Ocean Beach, when the question of issuing $20,000 bonds for the purchase of land for a playgrounds and civic center will be submitted.

All of Ocean Beach and Ocean Beach Park is included in the district that would assume the indebtedness of the bonds.

City Clerk Wright has stated that he duly checked the petition asking that such an election be held and found that it contained more than the necessary names of 10 per cent of the property owners in the proposed district.

Over $70,000.00 Permits Issued

BUILDING ACTIVITY FOR THIS YEAR REVEALS REMARKABLE GROWTH

At all times keeping a professional hand on the pulse of business activity throughout the beach district, W. H. (Bill) Rabahl, the busy and bustling manager of the O. B. Lumber Co., can always be relied upon for facts concerning building activities in this glorious residential section of San Diego.

"Bill" has just done some figuring on permits for the first quarter of 1925 and the results are wonderfully optimistic. The total for constructive work in Ocean Beach from January 1 to April 1 show the splendid sum of $70,660 in permits issued and there is every evidence for prophesying that this excellent aggregate will be greatly exceeded during the current quarter. In fact, it is predicted by some enthusiastic beach boosters that the building total for the spring will reach the one hundred thousand mark. Let's hope so!

At any rate, the showing since the first of the year is particularly gratifying when it is taken into consideration that the grand total of over seventy thousand dollars in permits represent only the construction of homes, with no special outlay for big building enterprises and the like. The growth of the section has been steady and healthy and values are decidedly on the increase.

SCHOOL ORCHESTRA PROGRESSING FINELY

The school orchestra gave a very creditable performance for the P. T. A. program last week. It was a splendid demonstration of what Mr. Nash-old has accomplished by giving just one lesson a week, only two of the pupils having ever had any other instruction.

MANAGER ERICSSON BOOKS BIG EXTRA SHOW FOR NEXT THURSDAY

Besides an all-star feature for next mid week, "The Dixie Handicap", a thrilling romance of the Kentucky turf, with Claire Windsor, Frank Keenan, and Lloyd Hughes in the leading rolls, an extra attraction has been booked for next Thursday night by Manager Ray Ericsson. Several members of the famous Northwest Mounted Police are to appear in person and give an interesting talk about their thrilling pursuits. They will be dressed in the brilliant scarlet coats and black pants with bright yellow stripe that gives gorgeous picturesqueness to their uniforms. Don't miss 'em. See regular display advertising for prices and listing of routine attractions.

THE SIGNATURE SNATCHER

Pointing out that forgeries cause losses of $100,000,000 a year, the American Bankers Association has issued a warning against "Signature Snatchers." They pick discarded deposit slips out of bank wastebaskets to copy depositors' signatures on fake checks. "Be careful of your signature," says the association.—News item.

"LOMA LORE"

By WINIFRED DAVIDSON
Point Loma, California

Book rights reserved.

July Fourth approached, and at midnight timed to the firing of the first centennial gun in Philadelphia, "a regular roar of artillery, from the firecracker to the sixpounder," went up from the city across the bay and again on Point Loma were the listeners and watchers rewarded by noise and bonfires.

The Union of July 13, says: " * * * in spite of hard times the county has continually grown in population and wealth. The telegraph connects us with San Francisco and the East, and with Arizona and New Mexico, and the railroad from San Francisco has approached within 90 miles, and will soon be pushed through to the Bay, while the outlook for the early resumption of work on the Texas and Pacific line is at this time very encouraging. To those who can remember the contrast presented by the place in 1867 the contrast presented today is simply marvelous."

The year 1876 was presidential election year. After a hotly contested campaign, Rutherford B. Hayes was elected. The son of one of the Old Town girls, Romualdo Pacheco, was in the race for Congressman from California and visited the spots here and in Old Town where his mother, as Ramona Carrillo, met his father, that Lieut. Romualdo Pacheco who came with Echeandia and served in 1826-29 as confidential secretary, surveyor, friend and advisor to the first Mexican governor.

A letter published in the Union on July 16, 1876, deserves quoting at full length, because of the first-hand information it gives of a period which has but too few references in print.

Notes of Early Days

"Editor Union—Your historical sketch of San Diego has revived in my mind the incidents of my first visit to San Diego in the summer of 1849, and has reminded me of many scenes and incidents which occurred in and around Old Town, and noted down in my journal while I was encamped on La Playa beach 27 years ago, when the present site of this new town was the home of the coyote, rabbit and quail.

"I left Boston, Jan. 11, 1849, on the barque Oxford, Capt. S. Maman. There were 17 cabin and 48 steerage passengers. We arrived at Rio Janeiro, Feb. 28, 48 days from Boston, remaining 4 days, and left in the harbor 5 vessels bound for California. Arrived off Capt Horn April 12 and reached Talcahuana, Chili, May 16, remaining there 5 days and leaving in port 7 vessels bound for California. We celebrated the Fourth of July on board the vessel in latitude 20 deg. 40 min. north, longitude 112. July 23 we sighted St. Clement's island, 193 days from Boston. Four boatloads of passengers went ashore on the island; they found no inhabitants; brought off some abalone shells, which were very beautiful when polished.

"Being becalmed several days in the latitude of San Diego, and short of fresh water, the Captain concluded to put into this port; and so, on the 26th of July our vessel was headed towards land. Early on the morning of the 27th we sighted San Diego harbor, arriving off the beach at La Playa at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, 197 days from Boston. The people of the Old Town came rushing down on horse-back to see who we were.

They told us they supposed our ship had been in the harbor before because the Captain had managed his vessel so well in making it, and coming so directly to a good anchorage. It was, however, our Captain's first voyage around Cape Horn, and out of the great number of ports he had entered, this one, he said, was the easiest. We found no wood except sage-brush to burn, and had to send up to Old Town and have fresh water brought down in carts drawn by oxen. During the afternoon most of the passengers went on shore and walked up to Old Town and back again. The principal residents were some old Spanish families—the Bandinis, Estudillos and others. In the garden of Captain Fitch we obtained some very fine pears. My first meal in California after we encamped consisted of fresh smelts, crawfish taken out from near Point Loma, and some game killed on the Peninsula (North Island). The supply seems not to have given out yet.

NIGHT BUS SERVICE TEMPORARILY RE-ESTABLISHED ON VOLTAIRE STREET

Pending consideration by the city council of the bus line controversy, night service has been re-established on Voltaire street. A delegation from the territory affected appeared before the council last Monday, as did also the street railway officials, headed by Assistant General Manager E. J. ### "THE WINE OF LIFE" JUST OFF THE PRESS NOW ON SALE

Consistent with its policy of "always boosting Mission Beach, Ocean Beach, Pacific Beach and Point Loma," "The Beach News" again calls the attention of its readers to Katherine Tingley's great new book, "The Wine of Life."

"Its pages are aglow with the light of living Truth," says Hon. Frank G. Finlayson, Presiding Justice District Court of Appeal, Division 2, Los Angeles. "A sure guide and light in life's many perplexing problems, and a never failing comforter," writes G. von Purucker, M. A., Professor of Sanskrit, Hebrew, and Greek, Theosophical University. And J. F. Loba, writing in "The San Diego Union," said, "The book is an amazing revelation of the scope of Katherine Tingley's work and insight."

"The Wine of Life," is a boon to parents seeking more light as to the best methods of child-culture. It is of inestimable consolation to those who suffer and seek a rational explanation for the apparent injustices of life and a way to overcome them. Above all, it opens wide to everyone the door of self-directed evolution—or rather, it gives to each the key with which he may open the door for himself.

We feel confident that our readers will not be disappointed in ordering this great new work by Katherine Tingley.

In the words of John Hubert Greusel, the noted American newspaper interviewer, writing for "The Detroit Free Press," "Katherine Tingley seems to combine in herself the constructive genius of Catherine of Russia with the idealism of a modernized Joan of Arc."

"The Wine of Life" may be obtained at The Theosophical Bookstore 1123 4th St., San Diego, or it may be ordered by mail directly from The Theosophical Publishing Co., Point Loma. The price is $3.00 per copy. A special leatherbound edition with the author's autograph is also available at $5.00 per copy.

SCHOOL POEMS

When it began to rain last Tuesday the pupils of the 6-A grade were inspired to write poems to the rain with the following results:

WHAT THE RAIN DOES

As I was sitting in my room,
And looking from the window sill,
It came to me in sudden thought,
How many things the rain can do.
It can water the poppies near the road,
The thirsty grass can drink its fill,
And so many other things the rain can do.
If we only think it will.
ROBERT P. INGALLS, 6A Grade.

RAIN FAIRIES

Pretty little rain drops,
Falling very fast;
Falling on the house tops,
And on the window glass.

Falling on the grass so green,
Falling down like little elves.
They can often yet be seen,
Through they try to disguise themselves.
MARY OZMUN, 6-A Grade.

THE RAIN-DROP SOLDIERS

The little rain drop soldiers,
Were marching from the sky;
They were dressed in silver,
When I saw them flying by.
They were beating on their little drums,
A rat-a-tat, a rat-a-tat;
Their little feet were going
Pitter-pat, pitter-pat;
Their little feet were going
Pitter-pat, pitter-pat.
Pitter, pitter-pat.
RUBY SMITH, 6-A Grade.

RAIN

The weather changed to-day,
When once it was so bright;
It kept us from our fun and play,
But changed our thoughts to other light.

It made us think of plants,
And crops, that would be spoiled;
And butterflies, with wings so gaunt,
That will not, now, be soiled.

Aye, we did not think of play,
But thought of everyone;
And felt much better for it;
Than having had our fun.

NORA STRAUGHN, 6-A Grade.

A SHOWER

I see the rain man coming,
The flowers see him, too;
They like the rain much better
Than the little drops of dew.

But suddenly they shudder,
And turn their heads away;
For a cold wind from the northland,
Makes them begin to sway.

The rain descends in a huge gray mass,
From out the broken clouds;
And when it falls without a care,
We know the flowers will get their share.

Device Prevents Squeal Nuisance

Stopping Condenser and Radio Frequency Choke Coil Needed.

A device that will promptly and permanently cure all re-radiation ills has just been released. There is nothing complicated about its structure despite the popular belief that an instrument of this type would be more intricate than the mechanism inside a Frankenstein monster. In fact, it consists of a small stopping condenser (between .0005 and .001 mfd.) and a radio frequency choke coil; nothing more is required.

If you should desire to change your regenerative set, the following explanation plus a few minutes' work will relieve you of the worries of a "squealer":

First, disconnect both antenna lead-in and ground wire. Second, connect the radio frequency choke coil in the plate circuit of the first audio frequency amplifying tube. It is very Diagram Showing How to Change Your Regenerative Set.

Important that this choke coil is connected directly to the binding post on the tube socket. To do this, it will be necessary to break the connection in the plate circuit of this tube and to connect one end of the choke to the plate binding post. The wire which has just been removed can then be connected to the free end of the choke coil.

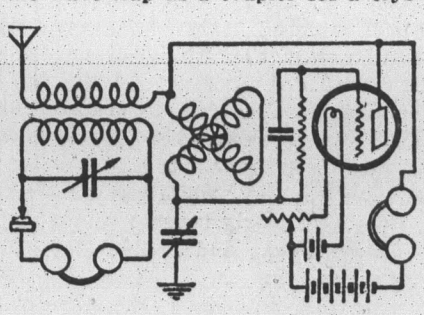

Third, take a lead from the plate of this same tube and connect it to the stopping condenser. The free side of this condenser should then be connected directly to the grid binding post on detector tube socket.

The fourth and last step is to connect the antenna to the grid binding post on the first audio socket and the ground wire to A battery minus.

After making this change you should be able to face your neighbors with a clear conscience, regardless of the type of set you are using.

Wave Trap Coupler in Crystal and Tube Sets
By EARL LETT

While experimenting with a compound wave trap consisting of two loosely coupled coils, one of which was tuned with a .0005 variable condenser, I conceived the idea of using the wave trap as a coupler for a crystal set when the tube set was not in use.

Using Tube Set to Increase Volume of Crystal Set.

Upon trying it out it was found that it worked fairly well. They say that small things lead to greater ones. I believe it is so, for later on I tried tuning in with the tube set while the crystal set was in operation and found that I could not only receive two stations at once but that somehow the tube set increased the volume of the crystal set almost three times.

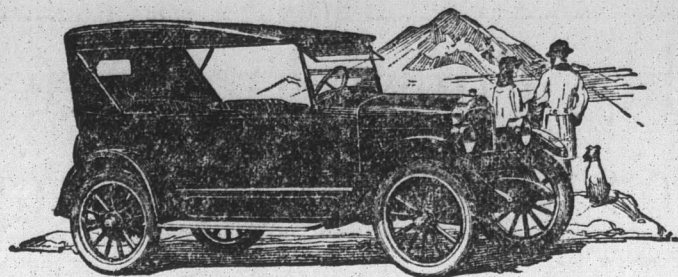

It was found, however, that allowing the tube to oscillate destroyed the sensitivity of the crystal at that particular point. With this I have repeatedly received two stations varying widely as to wave length and over far greater distances than a crystal set is supposed to receive.—Radio Digest.

What Fans Should Know About Use of Wave Trap

A wave trap is a coil shunted by a condenser, inserted in series with the antenna lead-in or ground wire of the receiving set to eliminate interference. By tuning the wave trap to the wave length of an interfering station the undesired signals can generally be eliminated. The wave trap offers high impedance to the wave of the undesired station and at the same time offers normal impedance to the station the operator wishes to hear. A good wave trap for use on the wave lengths used for broadcasting can be made by using a honeycomb coil No. 75 and a .23-plate variable condenser with vernier control. If interference is caused by a station using higher wave length than employed by broadcasting stations a larger honeycomb coil should be substituted.

History of Lace

Lace was first made in the Sixteenth century. Before that time the term lace described such articles as cords, narrow braids of plaited and twisted threads, used not only to fasten shoes, sleeves and corsets together, but also in a decorative manner to braid the hair and to wind around bats. Later it was used as a trimming for costumes.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

KNOW YOUR TALENT

THE first requisite in the life of the youthful, is to know his or her natural talent so that it may be intelligently developed and turned to profitable account.

Find the hole in which your peg fits without wabbling and keep it there. Do not move from pillar to post in quest of another, and you will enjoy more of what makes life valuable, glad as the years swing by that you have held firmly to your original intention.

Most of the failures in this work-a-day world are due to inefficiency, caused generally by shifting from one station to another and the woeful lack of fixed effort in the pursuit of a definite course.

You never can find the port you hope to reach if you persist in sailing your ship without compass and rudder. The tides and the winds will toss your precious craft into the open jaws of destruction or hurl it high and dry on the scowling rocks from which there is no likelihood of escape.

If you have a talent for painting, see that you produce pictures of beautiful themes and attractive colors; if your hand is deft in the use of tools, clasp the saw and the hammer and resolve that no one shall excel you.

THE PRIZE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

IF YOU will conquer life, if you will live it as you long to do, depends not only on the man. But on the purpose, on the plan. The dream with which your life began.

For I have seen that those who fail, whose hearts are empty, lives are stale, failed not because life never brought The thing they wished for, thing they sought— They found it was not what they thought.

They won—but when they seized the prize It faded there before their eyes; It was a tinsel thing, not worth The brotherhood, the love, the mirth, That they had paid for it on earth.

The worthless things, I found, were these: Mere opulence, mere empty ease. For, when that opulence had come, It was not worth one-half the sum That they had paid for every crumb.

But they who this their pray'r had made: The chance to labor at their trade, To fashion things they loved to make, Who labored for the labor's sake, Not merely ease to overtake— These were the happy, these content, Whatever way their fortunes went; Because they did not wait until Senility, the final hill, To find their joy—for no one will.

Our joy is all around us, now; The bird is singing o'er the plow, The busy spindle hums a song— Oh, he who waits for joy is wrong, For there is laughter all along!

A well done task, a well made thing, These are the joys to make us sing. The laurel wreath is often late, And fortune fickle as our fate— But for our joy we need not wait.

Your Last Name

IS IT SILLIMAN?

THE Silliman family in the United States was founded by Daniel Silliman who came from Holland. The tradition is, however, that the family originated in Italy and there is enough in the sound of the name to bear out this tradition. One of Daniel Silliman's descendants was Gold Selleck Silliman, a brigadier general in the Revolution and his son was Benjamin Silliman, born in 1779, who was a well known American chemist. He founded the American Journal of Science and art. His son Benjamin Silliman, born in 1816, was a chemist and physicist also well known.

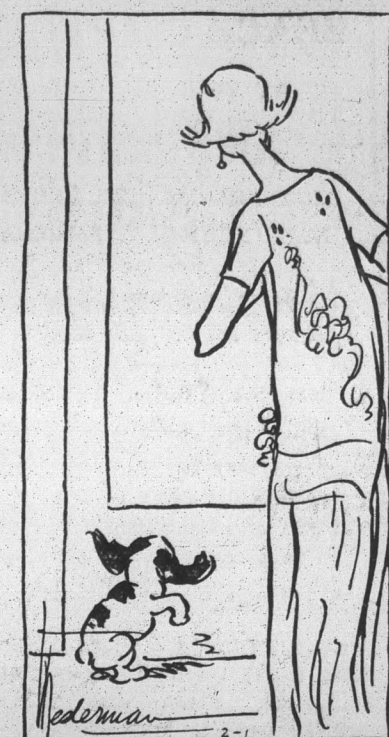

Strange and Strang—These names are sometimes merely different forms of the same surname, but there is reason to believe that Strange sometimes has a different origin. There is a surname Lestrang, originally Lestrang, and Strange is sometimes derived from this, with the meaning of stranger or foreigner. However, Strang usually is from Strong, Strang being the peculiar north of England way of pronouncing that adjective. In this case it is merely a descriptive surname.

Sir Robert Strange, an eminent line engraver who was born in Orkney, in 1721, was a member of a distinguished Scotch family whose name is sometimes spelled Strang or Strange.

Thibaut—As a surname this is derived from the first name that in France has the forms Theudobald, Thiebaut, Thibaud and Tibaut, and in England Theodebald and Theobald.

Tenderloin Cutlets. Chop fine one pound of beef tenderloin, half a pound of veal and one-fourth cupful of cooked ham. Add one-fourth cupful of sweet cream and four ounces of marrow rubbed to a cream with two tablespoonfuls of orange juice. Season with salt and pepper and mix thoroughly. Press the meat into eight cutlet shapes, saute in butter, olive oil or bacon fat. Cook six or eight minutes. Serve with seasoned asparagus.

Swedish Stew.

Put into an earthen dish two and one-half pounds of beef stew, cut into small pieces, a large carrot sliced thin, three cloves, six tablespoonfuls of pearl tapioca, two tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs, tablespoonful of vinegar, one-eighth of a grated nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste. Cover tightly after adding a little water and let cook five or six hours in a moderate oven.

Celery Relish.

Mix rich cream cheese with seasonings of salt, a dash of cayenne and color a delicate green. Fill the centers of the stalks of tender celery with the cheese. Arrange around a mound of salted browned walnuts, the thick ends to the center, leaving the leaves on the stalks.

Junket With Banana Pures.

Press the pulp of two bananas through a vegetable press or ricer, add two teaspoonfuls of sugar and one-fourth cupful of water, let simmer until well heated, then add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and half a teaspoonful of granulated gelatin soaked in cold water and dissolved in hot water, mix well and pour into the bottom of custard cups. When firm, heat one quart of milk to blood heat, add one junket tablet crushed and dissolved in a tablespoonful of water, one teaspoonful of vanilla; mix and pour over the banana mixture in the cups. Serve when chilled with whipped cream.

The Appleton Family

Mr. Lyander John Appleton
Mrs. Lyander John Appleton
Miss Daysey Mayne Appleton
Master Chauncey Devere Appleton

IT TAKES a great deal of coaxing on the part of Lyander John Appleton to induce his wife to buy an old hen and stew it down, and he finds that this is the cause of her objection: There is no French name for a stewed-down old hen.

Lyander John Appleton is never sure that his wife has forgiven him for an offense until apple dumplings appear. She may say she forgives him; she may even refrain from saying mean things about his kin, but he is never positive that forgiveness is full and complete until the apple dumplings appear.

Daysey Mayne Appleton claims to be such a good judge of cooking that she can go by any house and tell by the whiffs from the kitchen what is on the stove, how long it has been on, and if the cook is leaving it on too long.

When Chauncey Devere Appleton was three years old he stopped kissing and hugging his father when he wanted a favor in return, making the discovery by himself that it wasn't the manly thing to do, but Daysey Mayne still keeps up the practice, and she is so old she has worn out three pianos.

Kobe college, the first Christian school for girls in the western half of Japan, is to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding next October.

EDITORIAL

"EVERYTHING'S LOVELY AND THE GOOSE HONKS (HANGS HIGH)"

That's the situation from a maximum standpoint as the result of the recent election contest. And, if you've any doubts about it, just ask Louis C. Maire, who ran a nip and tuck race with Harry K. Wietzel for second place on the city council ticket, while the ever-popular "Dad" Brusch broke all records for councilmanic votes. The complete election returns are given in another column. Our congratulations to the victors.

MAKING MANKIND BETTER

Lawlessness is a national problem. It is statistically stated that the total cost of crime last year equaled the country's budget of three and one-half billion dollars. This appalling fact is recognized as evidence that good citizenship cannot be forced upon the people by more laws or more enforcement of legal statutes. It must be the result of education and moral training that makes crime repugnant. And the church and the newspapers and the schools take leading parts in this kind of education.

Good morals make good government and good citizenship. It means money in the bank and food on the table and one's roof over one's head. There is no better business than to make mankind better.

COAST ARTILLERYMEN MADE HAPPY AGAIN BY ARRIVAL OF "KING"

A royal reception awaited the arrival of a new pet "pup" for the soldiers at Fort Rosecrans the first of this week. Greatly saddened by the recent demise of their canine friend "Nigger," the artillerymen stationed at the Fort are again in the seventh heaven of delight, after chipping in" for the purchase of a suitable successor to their former favorite. Staff sergeant Ransom P. Wood was commissioned to procure the new mascot for the Fort and how well he succeeded was fully evidenced last Monday upon the arrival here by auto from Arizona of a most magnificent Great Dane, bearing the very appropriate regal name of "KING." He is a little over one year old and weighs 195 pounds. Standing normally, his back is on a level with the ordinary desk or table and when reared on his hind legs he reaches some six or seven feet. "King" is only a pup and when full grown will probably tip the scales 'round 250 lbs and he will be about the size of a healthy colt. He is a superb canine specimen and his mouse-colored coat is beautifully blended in light and dark shades. "King" and Sergeant Wood were most welcome callers at "The Beach News" office shortly after the arrival of his royal high-

SOLDIERS MOURN THEIR CANINE PAL By Ransom P. Wood Staff Sergeant 3d C. A.

Visitors driving thru the military reservation of Fort Rosecrans recently may have wondered at the gloomy and downcast aspect of the men stationed at the Post. Their attitude is explained from the fact that "Nigger," the canine friend and pal of every man at the post was taken suddenly sick last week and sent to a veterinary hospital for treatment. It was found best for various reasons however, to put an end to his suffering.

"Nigger" came to the post over a year ago as a puppy, and made such a big hit with the men that he was officially made a member of Battery "D", Third Coast Artillery. If ever a dog was loved, teased and played with as much as "Nigger" and found able to stand the strain that dog surely must be extraordinary, so it is hardly any wonder that those men feel deeply the loss of their friend.

It was with great regret that the men of the Battery lined up to pay the highest honors that can be accorded to a pal when "Nigger" was buried with full military honors. Mess Sergeant Seely fired the customary three volleys and Sergeant R. P. Wood read the burial service.

MONTHLY MEETING

O. B. WOMEN'S CLUB

NEXT MONDAY NIGHT

The regular monthly meeting of the Ocean Beach Women's Club will be held next Monday evening, April 13th, at 8 p. m. All members are urged to be present, and they will be glad to have as their guests any residents or visitors to Ocean Beach who would like to join the club. The invitation and membership fees are very low and entitle the members to membership in the various departments without extra charge.

The program committee, of which Miss Jean Rittenhouse has recently been appointed chairman, has arranged a treat in the way of entertainment for this meeting. There will be no regular speaker and instead Mrs. Howard Dudley will entertain those present with stories of Burma, India, told in the native costume. Mrs. Dudley has lived in India since 1902. She was superintendent of schools there and has written of her experiences for the magazines. She tells the droll and impressive incidents of life in that far-off land in an irresistibly charming manner, and she is always ready to answer the many questions which her tales bring up in the minds of the listeners.

In addition to the entertainment program there are many important and interesting matters of business to come before the Club. Word of the proceedings of the county federation, of which the Ocean Beach Club is a member, will be given by the president. The Service Department, Civics Department, Study Department and Garden Department have all met since the last regular Club meeting and will have interesting reports to make and opportunities to offer. At the last meeting of the Board of Directors the resignation of Mrs. Cole from the Board was accepted with regret and Miss Kate Spani, who has recently become a member of the club through her interest in the work of the Civic Department, was elected to fill the vacancy by a unanimous vote of the Board members.

LEGGO

By Winifred Davidson

This Leggo is a freakish pup;
He never wags his tail!
He never laps the cat's milk up,
Nor fights foe, tooth and nail.

Never has Leggo barked nor bayed,
Nor scratched at varnished doors,
Nor leaped in joy, nor cringed afraid,
Nor tracked mud on clean floors.

Never came he when whistled at,
Nor hid bones from himself.
These fifty years, calm, sleek and fat,
He's graced a whatnot shelf.

Electric Fireless Cooker Soups

Written for "The Beach News" by Sarah E. Dunn

When it comes to soup making the electric fireless cooker and also the electric range oven are without question superior to other methods of cookery. The reason is very simple when one considers that length of time is the most necessary factor in good soup making. To be sure one may cook a soup for a long time other ways, but not with the same degree of ease. Nearly all men like soup, but they always say they prefer both soups and stews on more days old, or when they have been reheated several times. The reason they prefer them thus is that only lengthy cooking brings out the strength of the meat and vegetables. This is very necessary if the soup is to be nourishing as well as palatable and most cooks do not cook the soup long enough the first day.

Vegetable Soup

This soup I always cook in the electric range oven for five or six hours and as long or longer in the cooker. For eight people I use two pounds of beef from the shin and as many marrow bones as I can obtain from the butcher without extra charge. To this I add fifteen cents worth of soup greens, several discarded lettuce leaves, a medium sized can of tomatoes and salt and pepper to taste. I cut up my greens, although this is not necessary, and add two potatoes diced and a seasoning of salt, pepper and paprika. Then I add the right amount of water and bring it all to a boil over a heater unit of the electric range. Meanwhile I heat my oven or cooker and then put the soup into which either one I am going to cook with. If the cooker is used the electricity remains switched on for an hour or longer at "medium" heat and then it is switched off and the soup is permitted to cook in the stored heat for four hours. Usually half hour before the soup is to be served I switch on the current and let the soup boil steadily for that time. While if the soup is to be cooked in the electric range oven this oven is heated to 450 degrees when the soup is put in and then immediately switched to "low" heat and kept thus during the entire time the soup is cooking. In either case the amount of electricity consumed is about the same.

English Lamb Broth

Take two pounds of lamb or mutton soup meat, add ten cents worth of greens finely chopped, two potatoes, two onions and an extra bunch of carrots. Bring this to a boil over a heater unit of the electric range and cook for the same length of time as the vegetable soup in either the oven or cooker. The only difference is that one hour before you are ready to serve the soup you should add to it a cupful of barley.

GOING OVER THE RIVER

By FRANK H. BLIGHTON

(© by Short Story Pub. Co.)

In a delirium of fever a newspaper reporter sees the call of death. This is a vivid piece of imagination dealing with a thought that some time or another has come to us all.

IN HEALTH, George Graves edited baseball news on a Quaker City daily. Now, aflame with fever, he tossed restlessly on a cot in Jefferson hospital.

In delirium he sometimes cheered ghostly ball players or sat up in bed to better write imaginary snappy narratives of the drama his heated brain unfolded before him. When rational, his sparkles of wholesome wit, his calm courage, and pleasing courtesy gave zest and spirit to the surgical ward where he lay.

The medical wards were overflowing, every private room was engaged, hence Graves was allowed to trespass on the good graces of "Big Jim" Kennedy, the house surgeon for the surgical section. He had once roomed in the same flats with the newspaper man and took a lively interest in his welfare.

The usual crisis was near for Graves. His friends on the paper had chipped in generously, from managing editor to copy boys, and the best physicians in the city were his attendants. His condition was serious. A black depression shadowed his desk in the Broad street skyscraper.

He woke at midnight, entirely rational. There was a bustle at the door. Someone was brought in on a stretcher. A bed next his own was prepared, the figure was lifted into it. Graves thought he saw two sleek Chinamen standing near, looking with sad faces at the bed. When they had gone, to make sure, he called Kennedy.

"Three Lung, Chink," said the doctor. "The chaps you saw by the bed are his brothers. Rich, but has had case peritonitis. Native doctor on Race street prescribed yellow paper with tumble-bun sauce, to cast out the devils in his body. Only one chance for him—operation tomorrow, washing out of abdominal cavity with saline solution—may live—may die."

The foot of the Chinaman's bed was propped up rather high when Graves woke the next day, near noon. The faint smell of ether came to him. Presently the patient began to jabber. Graves sat up in bed, his matted hair clustering in wads around his gaunt face, with its ragged ends of fever beard. But his eyes sparkled, and a smile twitched the corners of his mouth. His friends scented the fun.

"Three Lung will now give the Chinese version of a Swiss mountaineer yodeling," he sputtered. "One lung would fall! Observe him carefully, gentlemen!"

As the etheric sleep steadily lifted from the Chinaman, he renewed his jabbering, mixing his English profanity with plaintive high-keyed blats in his mother tongue. At the first pause Graves spoke again:

"Imitation of a steamboat making a landing. Notice particularly the whistle and its absolute fidelity to nature!"

Piping yelps, ludicrously like the whistle, immediately followed. The Chinaman's after-operation agony was intensified by his high fever. In spite of the seriousness of the case the other patients roared with laughter at the predictions and their humorous realization.

"Be a good boy, Mr. Graves," said the nurse, coming up to his bed. "Lie down and try to sleep."

Graves had a rise of two degrees in temperature, and the ice-water tub was rolled to his bedside. He stood it like the game fellow that he was, and experienced much relief when wrapped in a blanket afterward.

Presently he found himself on the brink of a very high cliff. Over its edge ran a wire cable, and hanging from it were many ropes, each attached to a stout pulley which ran along the top of the cable.

Garbed and bearded like the pictures in the family Bible, a patriarch stood near the cliff's brink, writing in a huge book the names of people who came there.

Each arrival caught one of the ropes and slid over the edge of the cliff, suspended from the heavy cable. All shot down into the dense mist below and vanished. Their destination was hidden from view.

The throng was very large and it seemed to Graves that they would never stop coming. It reminded him of the crowds arriving at the city parks on a sultry Saturday night. Grave-faced men with frock coats and silk hats were there; women of the gutter; children and even babies; swarms of workmen and youths and maids. Every type of humanity, every color and every garb that Graves had ever seen in the world's activities or beheld in pictured presentation, was there. The panorama of personality dazzled him.

There was not a word spoken, not a whisper exchanged between any of the arrivals; even the babies voiced no cry of pain or gurgle of pleasurable emotion. There seemed to be a complete apathy or insensibility of any one personality with regard to the presence or condition of any other in the gathering. Graves was puzzled.

He came at last before the patriarch, and murmured his name in response to some inward prompting. He was told to swing over the brink as those had done who had preceded him.

"But why?" said he.

"This is death!" replied the patriarch, as he took the name of a beautiful woman and then that of a general in full uniform who was just behind her.

"What?" ejaculated the amazed young man.

"This is death!" calmly replied the registrar, and he again wrote the names of several. One of them wore garments of fine linen, one the tawdry garb of the slums.

"Does everyone die in this way?" asked Graves. It was so different from what he had imagined it would be.

"Yes!"

"Kings and queens, and great generals, laborers and paupers, sick women and tender babies?"

"Yes!"

"But," went on the bewildered young man, "I was always taught that at death there was a classification made—"

"There is a switch on the cable in the mist below," answered the gravely majestic figure. "There it is known where each is to go and there are no mistakes when the paths divide."

Graves pondered. More people passed him. The procession seemed endless. Back in the throng he saw a Chinaman—it was the same one who had occupied the bed next to him in Jefferson hospital.

"Well," said he, and there was no fear in his heart as he spoke, "if fragile babies and gentle ladies, brave generals, criminals and saints must all go through the same procedure, I guess it is good enough for me."

He reached out his hand for the pendant rope. The Chinaman stepped in front of him, jerked it from his fingers, and swung over the cliff.

He looked around. The hospital walls stared at him. It was midnight and very still. Kennedy and the nurse bent over the bed next to his. They were putting a screen around it. He raised feebly on his elbow to see better and noticed that he was perspiring freely. The nurse turned to him.

"Don't make any noise, Mr. Graves. The Chinaman is just going over the river!"

All States Recognize Laws Made by Others

The Constitution of the United States imposes certain obligations upon the states in their dealings with each other. Section 1, Article IV, providing that "full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state."

This clause has been held to mean that in civil cases, when the courts of one state have given a judgment, such judgment will be recognized and enforced by the courts of every other state without a new trial. It also means that contracts legally entered into in one state are binding and enforceable in another. In the matter of divorce, by this clause a state is required to recognize a divorce granted in any other state, even though it may have been granted for reasons for which the laws of the first state would not allow a divorce.

The only restriction which courts have upheld in their interpretation of this clause of the Constitution is that the state granting the divorce shall have jurisdiction over the parties; that is, that the party should have a bona fide residence within the state and that proper notice of suit should be given. Thus New York must recognize Nevada divorces if it be shown that the plaintiff had a legal residence in Nevada and the defendant had been legally notified of the suit.

Palestine

There are so many things that might be said about Palestine in spring time! To begin with, it is one of the most beautiful countries in the world. It is well worth visiting for its own sake, quite apart from its religious associations. The wild flowers on the Judean hills, standing out in their bright red and yellow and blue against the bare rock (for there is very little grass), are a sight to be remembered; and they set you wondering whether the makers of those stained-glass windows in our Gothic churches can all of them have been to Palestine, for the flowers shown there have always an unnatural brightness and absence of a green background.—C. W., in The Outlook (London).

Engineer With a Heart

The train was speeding along toward the tunnel and the eclipse was gradually getting to total. Westchester commuters were straining their eyes for a final glimpse, many wishing the train would get in a jam so that they could see the great show. Then the train stopped. It remained still until the sun was entirely covered and then moved quickly into the tunnel.

The engine driver produced more good will for that road than weeks of propaganda and dozens of official proclamations, and at Grand Central many passengers moved forward to thank him.—Wall Street Journal.

Surely Lucky Stone

No sir! You can't convince G. W. D'Vys of Rowe, that the genuine Hindoo luck stone he carries in a wallet in a pocket over his heart isn't genuinely lucky. While strolling along the shore of Lake Massabesic, N. H., he halted the progress of two bullets, the shots being fired from a further side of the lake. The lucky stone proved a life preserver as the bullets struck the stone at a variance of less than an inch, then glanced to either side, twice wounding D'Vys seriously, but not fatally.—Boston Globe.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE BIRDS' MEETING

The birds met in the lilac tree for the meeting which was to be held there. First of all they had a banquet of suet and then they talked and chattered and chattered.

"I think we should do something about it," said little Mr. Chickadee.

"We should," said Mr. Nuthatch, "but the point is, what shall we do?"

"We will ration them," said Mr. Chickadee. "Yes, perhaps we will have to ration them."

"What in the world or in the air does that mean?" asked Mr. Nuthatch. "That means," explained Mr. Chickadee, "that we will give them just so much of our singing and no more. We will put them on song rations instead of food rations. Instead of allowing them so much food we will allow them so much song."

"It has got to the point where we must do something. We can't let things go on without really doing something."

All the birds agreed to that. "You see," Mr. Chickadee said, "there used to be the saying 'A little bird told me.'"

"Whenever anyone knew a secret and someone said, 'How did you know that secret?' the first person would answer by saying: 'A little bird told me.'"

"That meant so much! That meant such an interesting secret, something heard in such a mysterious, wonderful way that they always said that it was a little bird who told them."

"That was such a sweet, such a pretty expression. We birds always liked it."

"But now they are always talking about what they can hear over the air by radio. They tell of the things they can hear from far-away points."

"And it seems unfair."

"It seems as though they'd forgot the little birds who whisper secrets through the air or who are to be spoken of when secrets are learned."

"It seems as though they were growing careless about their memories."

"They seem to be forgetting that we lived in the air and whispered in the air and sang in the air long before they had their radios."

"We flew, too, long before they had their airplanes. They shouldn't forget the birds who give their music quite free."

"They shouldn't forget the birds who've been singing for them all these years without sets, without any fuss at all."

"They shouldn't give up that nice little saying about 'A little bird told me.' Dear me, it would be just too dreadful if they changed it and said, 'A little radio told me.'"

"That would be just too dreadful," the birds all agreed.

"We shall have to ration them with our singing, much as we hate to do it, just to punish them," they all agreed. Then, as they perched quietly on the tree, a little friend of theirs came out of the house nearby. She it was who gave them the suit.

"Oh," she said to another small friend of hers, "I've had such a nice birthday. I've loved my spring jonquills and lovely poems and presents. I've been just as happy as could be. Only the birds don't seem to be singing quite so much. Last year they gave me a regular concert."

The birds nudged each other with their feathered wings.

"We needn't worry," they whispered. "We still have our loyal friends. We must never be disloyal. We're still loved."

Then they sang, and other birds came around and sang too.

"Ah," said the little girl, "my birthday is perfect now. Listen to those darling little birds singing. I knew they would sing in honor of the spring-time and of my birthday. I just knew they would."

And every little bird sang and chirped and made merry in honor of her birthday.

Make Careful Selection Before Planting Trees

For windbreaks and screens the white pine and fir, skirted with shrubbery, are very satisfactory. For shade the native trees are best. The oaks are hardy, comparatively free from insect pests and diseases, long-lived and stately. The American elm is graceful and clean, though not suited to close grouping; where the soil is moist, it is unexcelled for street planting. Where there is room the tulip poplar may stand alone or form the center of a group. In the native forest the poplar will be found in the moist, rich coves. It is a magnificent forest tree, grows rapidly, is beautiful alike in bole and branch, leaf and flower.

The hard maples are favorites because of their beautiful form, abundant foliage and rapid growth. The soft maples and Norway and Carolina poplars produce a quick shade, but are short-lived and otherwise undesirable. Some of the nut trees and the cherry and apple, with their wealth of flower and fruit, may find a place in the background.

Shrubs and flowers may break or conceal the foundation lines of the house. They may be grouped in angles and be planted as screens. The species—and there are so many elegant ones to select from—should be chosen because of their fitness for the purpose and to harmonize with the surroundings.

Interior of Home Calls for Careful Planning

The most important part of building a house is very often accomplished before actual construction begins. The economy, comfort, convenience and even the appearance of a house are largely dependent upon the care and thought employed in devising the plan. A well-planned house is a joy to those who live in it, while one that is badly planned costs as much or more to build and is a continual source of dissatisfaction and annoyance.

The results which can be secured by intelligent planning intimately concern every member of a household and are too important to be deliberately neglected. The home is the housewife's laboratory and workshop where the routine essential to a well-ordered home life is organized and carried on. Therefore, it is logical and imperative that careful consideration be given to these elements of the plan which simplify and lighten household operations. The welfare of the entire family is improved when proper attention is paid to the details of the arrangement and equipment which serve to add to the comfort of the individual. Economy must always be considered, but too often the opposite results when the plan is neglected or when it is the outcome of hurried, unwise or misdirected effort.

Value of Home Ownership

Home ownership is a very important factor entering into the extension of credit to the average individual. Those merchants who are willing to lead merchandise to people on a promise to pay at some future date are influenced to a large degree by home ownership.

The man who buys a lot and builds a home thereon, no matter how humble that home may be, gives evidence, in most cases, that he has been thrifty and industrious. In extending credit the merchant takes into account a man's habit of thrift and industry, and to acquire a home usually means thrift.

Paint Up in Winter

In prosperous times it is estimated by the United States Department of Labor that an average of 2,000,000 men are unemployed in this country annually. The cause for this situation can be explained on the grounds of seasonal occupations.

From the middle of October to the middle of February is what is known as the dull season. There should be no dull season for the painter because winter months are ideal months for interior painting and there is approximately five times as much inferior painting as exterior.

Pay Yourself Rent Profit

Have you ever figured up what you may have paid out in rent in the past five, seven or ten years? Everybody has to pay rent—rent on the other man's property and invested money or on his own investment, or a combination of the two. But the renter naturally has to pay the landlord a profit for the privilege of renting a place, a profit that he might be paying into his own pocket.

SIMPLICITY IN JUNIOR COATS; ENSEMBLE COSTUME IN FAVOR

JUST because one happens to have not yet reached her teens is no sign that one is not tremendously interested in latest fashions. Indeed, juniors have an all-enthusiastic, convincing way of announcing to mother that "everybody's wearing so and so, and I want one just exactly like it."

Keen perception, when it comes to observing details, is one of childhood's chief accomplishments. When little ensemble the central theme around which all style revolves, who would attempt the impossible?

All the modish world pays homage this season to the two or three-piece costume, whose relationship is established by virtue of fabric, color and design. The more we see of these matching outfits the more we enthuse over them. Stylists have sensed the artfulness of a coat lining of the same daughter looks over your shoulder as you are reading these words she will no doubt point to this picture calling your attention to such subtle details as the slit side pockets, not "set on" ones. Perhaps she will remind you that the coat is single-breasted, and that stitching and round buttons are the only trimming. However, as to color, Little Miss may have to draw upon her imagination unless mother reads to her the latest fashion report which says—tan, reindeer, brown, copen, are all in the list of favorites and oh, joy of joys, bright red coats are just as stylish as they can be. Plaid coats, strictly tailored, are also very popular this spring. So prospects are for colorful coats.

There are some fascinating models of tweed in rose, tan, lavender and material as one's frock or tunic blouse, and the idea is being featured.

Perhaps no fabric lends itself more enchantingly to these belong-together dresses and coats than do the now-so-fashionable gay printed crepes. What if the color of most of these fantastic prints be flamboyant or their patterning overbold, are they not to be worn under coats of most sedate and proper cloth, satin or silk? As an illustration of a composite costume in its most intriguing mood, study the picture herewith. The frock and lining of the coat are of printed crepe in beige, brown and the new cornelian color. For the coat in long tuxedo ensemble, cornelian colored charmeen is the fabric selected. The vague for plaits, which, by the way, are used on pastel blue shades, which have deep revers faced with contrasting flannel. Tweeds, flannels and chevrons are all featured for children's wraps. Some of the older girls' coats have flat velvet collars.

Intriguing Composite Costume.

In general lines and finish of coats for Miss Ten and Miss Twelve there is a disposition to simulate grown-up modes. The flare so fashionable in coats for older folks, is noted in quite a few junior wraps.

We may solve the cross-word puzzle, we may play a winning game of mah-jongg, but to discuss fashion without making the costume

CONTESTS IMPROVING HOME SURROUNDINGS

Furniture Brought From Attic and Upholstered by Owner in Virginia Living Room Contest.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is not necessary to enter a local "contest" in order to get started on improving one's home surroundings. Contests are helpful in giving one a motive for doing what one knows should be done anyway, and they have the added advantage, when conducted by extension workers, of centering attention on certain important aspects of good living rooms and providing whatever helpful information the home demonstration agent has been able to collect on the subject.

Scope for Improvement.

Anyone who really examines her own home in a critical way will see points about it that could easily be improved. The bureau of home economics of the United States Department of Agriculture has worked out a score card which has been successfully used by extension workers in several states, and from it one may gain a number of suggestions as to what to look for in deciding on changes necessary. The living room should be considered from the triple standpoint of its stationary features, its furnishings, and its cleanliness and order. The last feature may be attained without any fundamental changes other than the provision of suitable places in which to keep articles not intended to be decorative. The stationary features are hardest to change, but may, at times, be improved, with the help of the other members of the household. The furnishings themselves offer the widest scope for improvements. Each feature of the room should be judged in respect to its contribution to the beauty, convenience, and healthfulness of the whole, and its suitability when the other features are considered. Furnishings and finishes should be durable and easy to keep clean.

One cannot, as a rule, alter the size or shape of the living room, but if it is absolutely unsuited to the needs of the family, sometimes a different room can be used for the purpose. Possibly partitions may be removed or put in, if the room is too small or too large. The lighting, which includes windows, glass-paned doors, and artificial lighting, should be adequate, attractive and convenient. That is to say, lamps and fixtures should be placed so that the eyes are not strained, and there should be several lights at convenient points in the room. Such fixtures are part of its decorations, and should be pleasing.

Finish Needs Attention.

While any fundamental change in the heating plant of the house may be out of the question, frequently a boarded-up fireplace may be opened, a register enlarged or additional radiating units installed. Stopping up cracks around doorways and window frames with weather strips or filling of some kind may make considerable difference in the warmth of a room. Adequate ventilation must also be provided for, and complete screening in "fly" weather.

Furniture can be done over and re-grouped. Curtains and hangings can be freshened or replaced, superfluous and uninteresting pictures and ornaments banished. Those which are retained should add to the beauty of the room and should represent the tastes and interests of the family.

The arrangement of the furnishings depends a good deal on the use that is made of the room. People, for instance, like to sit in a group in front of a fire, and it is natural to find chairs and perhaps a settee or davenport placed invitingly opposite the fireplace. If there is one large, good light in the room, a group of chairs near it will attract those who wish to read or sew. Informal arrangements of this kind make the room look more "lived-in" than stiffly placed furniture.

CONVENIENT PLACE FOR IRONING BOARD

Virginia Woman Has Handy Nook for Implement.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where to keep the ironing board so that it will be clean, handy, and ready for use at any time is often a problem. A farmer's wife in Wythe county, Virginia, solved it as shown in the illustration. There was just enough space between the door frame and the window to accommodate the board. She nailed a piece of wood across the two frames at such a distance from the floor that when in use the ironing board would be the right height for her, with the other end resting on a chair. As this height might not do for a taller or shorter woman, it might be necessary to have a folding leg attached to the upper end of the ironing board. When not in use the board rests upright on the crosspiece and is secured in place by a wooden button fastened to the window frame. The bag for clean pressing cloths, wax, and the iron stand is kept just below the board. The bottle on the window sill has a perforated rubber top for sprinkling the clothes. This arrangement gives the housewife good light from both window and door, and in summer weather she is as close as possible to the cool back porch. The pictures were taken by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Ironing Board Attached to Wall, Ready for Use.

PRACTICING THRIFT IN PURCHASING FOOD

Cost Is More When Bought in Small Quantities.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A good housekeeper knows the quantities of each kind of staple food regularly required by the family and plans her buying accordingly. Almost any food costs more when bought in small quantities or in fractional parts of a pound or other measure. This may be due to the uneven division of the selling price into fractions or to the fact that the dealer charges more because he has to give more time and service to several small sales than to one large one. At the same time, for very small families, it is occasionally more economical to buy perishables in small quantities at a higher rate than to overbuy at a proportionately lower rate and suffer loss from spoilage.

Buying staple groceries and canned goods in dozen or half-dozen lots is usually a means of getting a lower rate. Shopping for such articles only once a week or a month saves time as well as money. On some kinds of foods it is possible to club with neighbors to get reductions on larger orders. This is a good way to buy perishable foods, when one household cannot make use of the entire quantity offered for a special price.

Foods in season are cheaper than those out of season, as the latter have usually to be brought from an entirely different climate. Surplus garden products, if stored, canned, or dried, are an economical addition to the supply of out of season foods. The United States Department of Agriculture will tell you how to save foods by these methods.

Buying by weight is most satisfactory and required by law in various states for many products. The cost per pound of goods in cartons or packages can be estimated from the statement of weight on the label, and compared with other products of a like kind.

Selling services are paid for by the customers in the added cost of goods. The "cash and carry" system is based on the elimination of delivery and credit expenses entirely, and usually stores run on this plan can offer the best prices. On the other hand, the convenience of delivery may be worth something to the consumer, and by planning her quantity buying so as to take advantage of this service, she may save valuable time. Usually stores which permit "charge" accounts make no difference for cash payment, but the housewife herself is better off if she pays cash.

Health and good looks —the reward of internal cleanliness.

IF YOU do not keep clean internally your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks and insomnia, each of which saps your health and vitality.

Avoid Laxatives—say Doctors

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition.

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Modern Banking and How it Has Changed From Pre-War Days

IT WAS at one time the policy of the Banks to try to persuade their depositors to leave all their money in the Bank; and never to make any investments. The Bank too, took no interest in any business outside of its own immediate affairs. It was not interested in the general projects that interested the whole community. That, however, is no longer the policy that modern banks pursue; today the Bank is the leader in its community, and takes a lively and practical interest in whatever makes for the betterment of the locality where it is situated.

It might seem that in a large city like San Francisco a bank could do little to further its prosperity. That is an erroneous idea. The Humboldt Bank for instance, makes use of its splendid window on Market street not only to call the attention of the passerby to its own business; but also to those interests which are vitally connected with the progress and growth of the city as a whole. For a week now it has had an elaborate display calling attention to the importance of the telephone in the life of every individual and business concern. Likewise how the telephone brings us in direct speaking contact with all parts of the country. The idea is to impress those who look at the window with the fact that the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has contributed greatly to the development of this western country and to the Western Gateway of the United States—San Francisco.

Carrying the same idea into the smaller communities of the country and state, why can not the local bank show how its town is the center of a great agricultural section; how that town is an important industrial point; how this is an ideal location for this or that industry; or how the local town needs more stores, a new hotel, or better facilities in some other line of business.

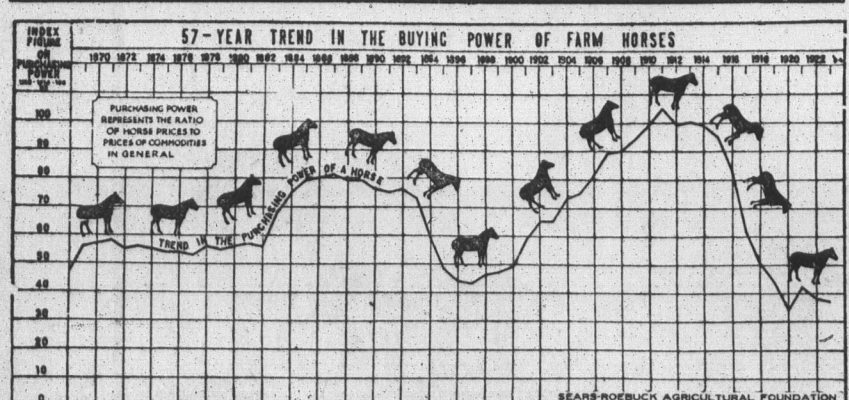

Every community has its specialty, and just as the Humboldt Bank has used the great telephone system which radiates from San Francisco to point out the importance of the Metropolis, so the smaller towns through their banks can emphasize their local attractions.

And just here let us call attention to the fact that while the Humboldt bank window attracts the thousands who pass it every hour; the Bank or newspaper in Doeville or Smithburg can, by making its window attractive, attract the attention of the hundreds who pass through every one of our villages, towns and smaller cities daily from all parts of the country in their automobiles. There is a very potent advertising possibility that most communities neglect. The Humboldt Bank is setting them an example which they can very profitably follow.

HOW BANKERS HELP

Seventeen students are securing an education in the Georgia State College of Agriculture through financial aid which the State Bankers Association is giving. In 1923 the Association increased its annual dues so as to contribute toward the education of boys and girls in club work who could not otherwise receive a higher education. This year, therefore, $1,000 was put into a trust fund with the College to be loaned to students who need help. It was placed in what is known as the "Ex-President's Fund," a fund which has been receiving voluntary contributions from the retiring presidents of the Bankers Association since 1915. In amount the fund is now $7,153. Fifty students have been helped prior to this year, making a total of sixty-seven.

KEEPING WELL

WATCH YOUR WEIGHT

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
 Editor of "HEALTH"

WOMEN are more concerned about their weight than men.

This is true in Newcastle, Pa., and it is safe to assume that it is equally true elsewhere.

In Newcastle, the city maintains penny-in-the-slot weighing machines. A recent report to the city council shows that the machines located where women alone use them were used nearly four times as much as those available for men.

This is good news, but it is only the beginning. Weight is a valuable index of one's physical condition. Many serious diseases first show themselves in loss of weight. On the other hand, most women—and men, too—of middle age and over, are too heavy.

Everyone should watch his weight and know whether he is gaining or losing.

But simply knowing your weight is of no value. To know that you are forty pounds overweight may increase your knowledge, but it won't decrease your waistline.

After you know that you are overweight, the next thing is to do something about it.

Except in those rare cases where there is some disease of the glands, overweight means just two things—too much food, too little work. If you want to reduce, you must eat less and work more. This is the hard part of the prescription. It's easy to step on the scales and say, "Oh, dear, I'm 20 pounds overweight," but what are you going to do about it?

Overweight is the commonest disease of middle age. It is the beginning of many serious conditions in after life.

Less starch, less sugar, less fat. More fruit, more green vegetables, more exercise.

The penny you drop in the slot will give you valuable information if you will only use it after you get it.

But if you go on living as you have been doing, eating all the white bread, butter, candy and rich desserts that you want, taking no regular physical exercise, your weight is going to stay the same or even increase.

Fat is not only an added burden and a danger, it is also ugly. It is literally true that "nobody loves a fat man." They may love the man, in spite of his fat, but they would love him more if he got rid of his padding and extra weight.

If your weight is normal and your body is fit, you will be healthier, happier, better natured, and more attractive to others.

WHY FARMING DECLINED

A review of the present status of agriculture in New England has shown that the more important contributing causes of the condition which exists are: Waste of farm resources; failure to understand and practice the fundamental principles of business; lack of an adequate program of farm management and soil management, with the attendant depletion of soil fertility; choice of unsuitable and oftentimes unmarketable varieties; the use of poor seed; the keeping and breeding of inferior animals; the use of purchased feeds instead of home grown grain; quantity instead of quality production; and failure to grade produce properly and according to law. The decline of New England agriculture presents a serious problem which deserves the most careful study.—Banker-Farmer.

Banks of Lee County, Mississippi, have a budget of $5,000 which they use in keeping an expert going about the county urging more dairying and better dairymen, an advisor on all dairy operations. Two hundred cars of heifers and cows were shipped out of the county last year.
